Shell Guide to Bird Sanctuaries: Newborough Warren

From near his home at Bodorgan, C. F. Tunnicliffe can look across Anglesey's Malltraeth Sands to Newborough Warren, with rocky Ynys Llanddwyn and its white tower: beyond, Caernarvon Bay and the Snowdonian heights of Britain's second largest National Park. In October, birds flock and pass through this crossroads of migration. Heavy, great black-backs stand out among the big herring gull pack on the beach and a flock of noisy oystercatchers bear down to the sands and their cockle beds. Eric Ennion's vignettes show other typical October birds: common redshank; bar-tailed godwits; and curlew which breed among the grassy dunes.

Newborough and Llanddwyn became a National Nature Reserve in 1955, but bird watchers have known them for years, studied and protected their tern colonies and watched the migrants. The best autumn bird watching point is at the head of the Cefni Estuary, between A4080 and the sea wall built by Thomas Telford a century ago. Here, at Malltraeth Pool, a fine selection of feeding waders can be seen (without leaving the car)—black- and bar-tailed godwits, common and spotted redshank and greenshank, little stint, rufi, knot and curlew sandpiper.

Several rights of way—obviously public paths—exist through the Nature Reserve, one of which leads about 3 miles from Newborough village through the dunes to the tip of Llanddwyn 'island.' Visitors off the right of way must have Nature Conservancy permits—from the Regional Officer for North Wales, N.C., Penrhos Road, Bangor. Further information can be obtained from Warden-Naturalist P. Hope Jones, Serai, Malltraeth, Bodorgan, Anglesey.

From the mainland via Menai Bridge, turn left on A4080 at Llanfairpwllgwyngyll . . . (etc.) and follow it 9 miles to Newborough, 11 to Malltraeth and 14 to Bodorgan. Take picnic and stout shoes for Llanddwyn walk.

JAMES FISHER

Some advice from Peter Scott: not all Britain's bird sanctuaries are open throughout the year. To avoid disappointment and help the sanctuary manager, please write ahead for permits, keep to trail regulations and drills, and read the COUNTRY CODE (6d. from H.M.S.O.).

London Life

Each week London Life will publish a comprehensive entertainment guide for seven days from Saturday to the following Friday (the dates on the cover). It is not intended to be a critical guide. In most sections we supply full information, leaving readers to select for themselves whatever interests them. When the information is selective this will be stated. As an additional aid to readers various critics will mark those entertainments which they personally recommend with one, two or three stars. In some instances these stars are tentative. Entries in this guide are not paid for. Individuals or organizations wishing to appear in the guide are invited to post full information to Entertainment Guide, P.O. Box 166, 11 New Fetter Lane, EC 4

Director/Author/ Star comment	GEORGE INNS: Our appeal is classless, ageless, nostalgic—we please dons and dockers, grandparents and teenagers	PAUL DANEMAN: I feel there is more to Camelot than musical and spectacle—which perhaps tends to obscure T H White's tender and whimsical version of the Arthurian legend	JULIA BRUCE: To me Maggie is a simply gorgeous character. She's a free spirit, very alive and very vulnerable and brassy. It's a great challenge; she's a splendid woman, I believe in her	AUBREY WOODS: I'm Fagin Mark IV just now: keeps you on your toes working with kids—they'd steal the show soon as look at you. It's a marvellous story—someone should turn it into a novel	KAREN FERNALD: I thought it would be a marvellous experience. I thought it was hilariously funny and I just wanted to see if I could play in a musical. When I heard some of the music I felt I had to be in it because the music is so lovely	KEITH MICHELL: I don't differentiate between the acting and singing bits all that much. Which probably means I act too much when I sing and vice versa	SONIA REES: Since playing Maria I've taught 114 children to sing Do-re-mi: they have all been lively, intelligent children and tremendous fun to work with. By this continual change, the scenes involving the children are kept very real and alive and become a great stimulant to myself and, of course, the show
Critic's comment	CLIVE JENKINS (TRIBUNE): The BBC's Black and White Minstrel Show is a revolting disgrace. At a time when the coloured people of the world are demanding their rights—and their dignity—it is a cultural obscenity... it adds to the stockpile of our prejudices	THE TIMES: Running to three and a quarter hours, Camelot is perhaps best understood as a product of America's taste for British pageantry.... The glowing amber recesses of Arthur's chapel, Morgan le Fay's shimmering cobweb palace and the exquisite backdrop of a sunset between the opposing French and English armies outdo in opulence anything we have seen in the past years. John Truscott, who designed the sets, and the brilliant fairy-tale costumes, certainly emerges with honour	THE TIMES: Mr Bart's ultimate destination is, of course, a sort of folk opera with its music created from the eclectic anthology of styles in which he works. In the amount of music he has composed for Maggie May he is probably nearer to his aim than in any earlier show	KENNETH TYNAN (OBSERVER): The hero... is Sean Kenny—or, rather, the smoky, oaken, restlessly revolving gargantuan setting that Mr Kenny has designed for this loyal and lively musical adaptation of Oliver Twist... Lionel Bart establishes himself as our leading exponent of musical comedy and it is not his fault that our attention strays in the second half—lockets, long-lost children and roof-top chases cannot be translated into acceptable theatre	ERIC SHORTER (DAILY TELEGRAPH): Do not be alarmed. In spite of its promisingly salacious theme, nothing actually happens... To the eternal credit of our public schools, nice old chastity wins through in the end... even in these supposedly enlightened times you cannot have girls at an expensive public school setting up a brothel in which anything happens	THE TIMES: Musically the show is long-winded and packed with too many unremarkable numbers. But it is a more sophisticated and dramatically functional score than most that reach the West End and one of the songs—a vaudeville for a solo voice chorus of the Barrett children—is extremely touching	HAROLD HOBSON (THE SUNDAY TIMES): The Sound of Music is going to be one of the biggest successes of all time. London is full of people who think Beckett depressing, Brecht an unwashed boor and Chin-Chin degrading. They will pack the Palace Theatre for decades, hugging themselves with the thought that the good old days of East Lynne are back again

THEATRE NEWS

Clement Scott Gilbert of the Ashcroft Theatre, Croydon, is out to repeat his last year's success with Night of the Iguana by putting on MAN & SUPERMAN. This time the play will start at the Arts Theatre Club. "We've got the same team," he says. "Philip Wiseman the director, Peter Farmer the designer and lighting man Colin Turner." He also has the same leading lady—Sian Phillips. "We did think about this a long time ago but we had to wait until Alan Badel's film commitments were through." First night: 23 Nov

OUR MAN PRESENTS... TRIAD II

It all started with the wallpapers and the fabric in the picture—a famous Louis Seize 'toile de jouy' design. Now it has world-wide acceptance as one of Our Man's most remarkable achievements—Triad, his unique collection of complementary wallpapers and fabrics. Our Man has been working on a sequel, collecting ideas and fashions in half the continents. Here it is at last—Triad II.

Open the pattern book anywhere. Two papers and a fabric bring a decorating scheme to life before your eyes. Modern or traditional, brilliant or subdued—each trio has its own individual flavour, satisfies someone's private fondness.

Ask to see Triad II at any Sanderson showroom or stockist. Just to leaf through the book is to get inspiration. You'll agree with Our Man that when it comes to bright ideas in papers and fabrics three's company from the start.

RESTAURANTS

Selective restaurant guide especially compiled by Neil Rhind, Editorial Manager of the Good Food Club. The Club's Good Food Guide (published by Consumers' Association and Cassell) has 1,600 entries covering the whole country. In this weekly section London Life will list and describe most of the reputable London restaurants in the course of the year. The name of the proprietor, where given, follows immediately after the telephone number. C.S. = Closed Sundays

BRITISH

BARON OF BEEF, Gutter La, Gresham St, EC 2 (MON 6961). Mecca Ltd. Dinner 5-9. Closed Sat & Sun. The sort of place London ought to be full of—and isn't. Traditional English food, properly cooked and served by a friendly well-run staff. Scotch sirloin carved from a trolley, Yorkshire pudding and horseradish sauce (12s 6d), steak and kidney pie for the same price, and whitebait with lemon (8s 6d). It is fitting that the vegetables include bubble and squeak (3s). The wine list is large and rather dear but there are carafes and some by the glass.

BENTLEY'S, 11 Swallow St, off Piccadilly, W1 (REG 6210). W A, D J and R G Bentley. Dinner 5-30-11. C.S. Now is the time to go to Bentley's. Because there is an R in the month and because Bentley's have their own oyster beds. They also have an Oyster Bar where they will sell oysters to you from 12s to 17s 6d the half-dozen. In the bar and the upstairs restaurant there are other sorts of fish and shellfish from about 7s 6d to 25s. The lobster bisque (5s) is very good. Wines from about 20s; some by the glass. Black Velvet, draught Guinness, of course.

BROWN BEAR, 179 High Holborn, WC 1 (TEM 4646). Mr H Roberts. Dinner (grills only W-F) 6-30-9. This Trust House on the corner of Drury Lane has a small dining area with only a handful of tables and a few bar stools. Roasts and grills predominate on the menu: plaice and chips (7s 6d), roast pork, loin of lamb, cold salmon, mixed grill (12s 6d) and the like. The soups and cheeses are good: the helpings plentiful. Wines from 8s 6d, by the glass 2s 6d; beers on draught.

CRANKS' SALAD TABLE, 22 Carnaby St, W1 (GER 9431). Daphne Swan, K and D Canter. Meals served continuously from 10 a.m. to 8.30 p.m. Closed Sat & Sun. If you buy your clothes in Carnaby Street, and even if you don't, Cranks' pure foods restaurant is a splendid place for lunch. All vegetarian: home-made soups, fresh and imaginative salads (two for 2s 6d, three for 3s 6d, five for 5s 6d), and an excellent selection of cheeses. Some rather original sweets and cakes. Dandelion as well as Cona coffee, and though some of the other drinks have pretty strange names, none is alcoholic. You should be able to eat quite well for 7s 6d. Afterthoughts: tipping is discouraged and the tinned music isn't pop.

GEORGE AND VULTURE, 3 Castle Ct, Cornhill, EC 3 (HOP 8900 Ext 351). John Gardner (London) Ltd. Lunch only 12-3. Closed Sat and Sun. So many of the really old, or Dickensian, pubs in the City serve such beastly food that it makes a change to recommend one that doesn't. The speciality here, on Thursdays during the oyster season (now, in fact), is Pickwick Pudding, made with steak, kidney, oysters and a special seasoning. This is 10s 6d; other popular dishes are cheaper—steak (8s), chump chops (7s), mixed grill (7s 6d) and gammon rashes (7s 6d). Cheeses (the Stilton is good) and steamed puddings for afters. Rosé in carafe (9s 6d), quarter-bottles and named wines by the glass from 4s; Ind Cope on draught. The George gets very busy by 12.45, and bookings are taken only before 12.30 p.m.

HUNTING LODGE, Lower Regent St, SW1 (WHI 4222). Lunch 12.30-3; dinner 6.30-11. C.S. This is a venture by Forte's to create the finest possible menu of traditional English food. The whole place (which older readers will remember as The Hungaria) has been done up to look like an English tavern with staff dressed as Edwardian footmen. The eating here, though authentic, isn't cheap: a variety of genuine potted meats (a rarity these days) cost 12s 6d each; the Cumberland ring sausage is 21s for two. Large and expensive wine list.

LYON'S CARVERIES: CUMBERLAND HOTEL, Marble Arch, W1 (AMB 1234). C.S. REGENT PALACE HOTEL, Piccadilly, W1 (REG 7000). C.S. STRAND CORNER HOUSE, Charing X, WC 2 (WHI 7373). Here is the opportunity not only to eat as much as you can hold for 18s or so, but also a chance to have a go at carving the joints yourself. There is a short list of starters: soup, grapefruit, melon and such, brought by the waitress. After this you have free run of half a dozen hot and cold joints from which you can help as much as you like, as often as you like. The vegetables are not up to the standard of the meats. Sound wine in bottle and carafe. Check times of lunch and dinner before setting out—the three places are by no means similar in this respect.

MASSEY'S CHOP HOUSE, 38 Beauchamp Place, SW 3 (KEN 4856 & KNI 4270). C.S. Mr G Debris. Dinner 6.30-11. A small steak house offering steaks, chops and chickens cooked on a charcoal grill. The home made pâté, chump chop (12s), fillet steak (16s 6d) and T-bone (30s for 2) are reliable eating. Service friendly and attentive. Small wine list; by the glass 3s

NAG'S HEAD, 10 James St, WC 2 (TEM 4678). Mr M Cox. Dinner 5.30-11. C.S. Having recommended somewhere to dine near Sadler's Wells it is only right to mention this famous pub, with its theatrical decor, near Covent Garden. They start dinner early enough for you to dine before the opera and if you tell them what time the curtain goes up they will try to feed you in time. The food is plain: sole, trout, duck, chicken and grills from about 6s-15s. Beer on tap; wine by the glass 3s. Not an outstanding place, but very useful.

PARKES, 4 Beauchamp Pl, SW 3 (KEN 1390). Tom Benson, J L Chamberlain, Beecher Moore. Dinner only 7.30-11.30. C.S. Many people think this is the finest restaurant in London. It certainly takes a lot of beating and I wouldn't like to be asked to name its nearest rival. Tom Benson took over as chef when Ray Parkes died, and has carried on the restaurant's tradition with exceptional originality and distinction. You pay £3 for a four-course table d'hôte meal which may include sweet-breads with cognac, mussels in a mustard soup, baby turkey with cherries and chestnuts, a salad with Roquefort pâté, and finish with a peach filled with lemon sorbet. The service is good, the wine list small and rather dear. You will certainly have a memorable meal. You must book well in advance.

SHEEKEY'S, 29-31 St Martin's Ct, WC 2 (TEM 4118). J Sheekey Ltd. Meals served 12.15-8.30 (Sat 12.15-3). C.S. A fish restaurant on the southern end of Charing X Road. It is very crowded, for the tables are set rather too close together and you might have to share yours with others. Still, the fish is worth it. Good helpings of stewed eels (6s), dressed crab (8s), lobster soup (8s). The rest of the seafood is steamed: sole (12s 6d), turbot (11s 6d) and salmon (16s) and others, served with either lobster (1s 6d) or parsley (1s) sauce. No sweets, only cheese. Good white wines from 18s 6d and upwards; by the glass 3s 6d.

AU FIN BEC, 100 Draycott Av, SW3 (KNI 3600). Mr Corte. Dinner 7.30-11. C.S. If you have strong objections to seeing your food being prepared and cooked, then this small French restaurant is not for you, for only a green glass window is between you and the kitchen. The 12s 6d table d'hôte at lunch is good value; the à la carte is limited to their own specialities (ask them what's on): oeufs Bénédicte (5s 6d), sole Grand Duc (13s 6d), suprême de volaille à l'Estragon (13s 6d) and other things have been "on" in the recent past. A short, well-chosen wine list; carafes 18s, 9s 6d the half; by the glass 4s 6d.

SIMPSON'S-IN-THE-STRAND, 100 The Strand, WC 2 (TEM 7131). Lunch 12.30-3; dinner 6.10. C.S. Simpson's is not for slimmers. The inclusive helpings of body-building potatoes and cabbage with every main course preclude such pastimes. The trolley-borne roasts, the pies, puddings (sweet as well as savoury) and the restaurant's basic Britishness have made Simpson's world famous. You will be able to stuff yourself for less than 20s. The wine list is good and expensive; the Bass on draught well kept; carafes from 18s 6d.

STONE'S CHOP HOUSE, Panton St, SW1 (WHI 0037). Dinner 6-12. C.S. This is from the same stable as Simpson's-in-the-Strand and is similarly a traditional English restaurant, though it has less atmosphere because the building was put up only in 1963. Roasts (beef 13s 6d, mutton 12s 6d) from the trolley, steak and kidney pudding (9s 6d) and various grills (12s 6d-16s 6d), can provide a not too expensive lunch. Wine list better than Simpson's; carafes from 13s 6d, by the glass 3s to 7s 6d (Ch. d'Yquem); Bass on draught

SWEETING'S, 39 Queen Victoria St, EC 4 (CIT 3062). Lunch only 11.30-3. Closed Sat & Sun. Sweeting's is now more than 100 years old, and the manager claims that his staff have been there almost as long. It is, of course, one of the best places in the City for seafood: smoked cod roe (3s), soured herring (6s), real turtle soup (4s); fish pie (9s 6d), grilled herrings in mustard sauce (6s 6d), fresh salmon fishcakes (8s 6d). There are a few meaty things if you don't want fish. White wines on a help-yourself basis at 3s the glass; champagne (6s 6d), Black Velvet (7s 6d). Bookings taken only for before 1 p.m., or after 1.30 p.m.

VIKING RESTAURANT, 52 Church St, Edmonton, N9 (EDM 2555). Mr J Cameron. Meals from 9 am-11.30 pm. C.S. The Viking, in spite of its name, has nothing to do with Norsemen in horned helmets—it is basically British, and has been run by the Camerons for more than a quarter of a century. Among the plainer dishes are steak and kidney pie (5s 6d), veal in rosemary (8s), and Scotch steak with veg (10s); but for a change try soured trout (4s 6d), turbot, and curried prawns with saffron rice (6s 5d). Wines by the glass 2s 6d

FRENCH

ANDREA'S, 8-9 Blacklands Tce, SW3 (KNI 2919). A Antonio. Dinner 6.30-11.15.

C.S. A quiet place, comfortable and relaxing. Andrea's doesn't attempt any curiosities in its cooking but sticks sensibly to the dishes it can do well. The entrecôte Marcellaise and the chicken à la Kiev (both at 14s 6d) are consistently good, the veal dishes (Chasseur and Milanaise 15s 6d and 13s 6d) and the pastas are likely to please. The wines are interesting but dear; carafes for 14s, 7s 6d the half; wine by the glass 3s 6d.

AU FIN BEC, 100 Draycott Av, SW3 (KNI 3600). Mr Corte. Dinner 7.30-11. C.S. If you have strong objections to seeing your food being prepared and cooked, then this small French restaurant is not for you, for only a green glass window is between you and the kitchen. The 12s 6d table d'hôte at lunch is good value; the à la carte is limited to their own specialities (ask them what's on): oeufs Bénédicte (5s 6d), sole Grand Duc (13s 6d), suprême de volaille à l'Estragon (13s 6d) and other things have been "on" in the recent past. A short, well-chosen wine list; carafes 18s, 9s 6d the half; by the glass 4s 6d.

LE BEURRE FONDU, 1-3 Wilbraham Pl, SW1 (SLO 6221). Rawles Ltd. Dinner 6-10. C.S. This has oak-paneling, and hasn't been open much more than a year. It is part of the Wilbraham Hotel. There is a table d'hôte menu for 14s 6d (lunch) and 19s 6d (dinner) which is changed every day; the à la carte menu is internationally ambitious. Wines are dear, but there are small 4s glasses.

LE CARROSSE, 19 Elystan St, SW3 (KNI 5248). Geoffrey Sharpe. Dinners only 7.11.30. C.S. This is an attractive, pleasant place that sensibly limits its menu, and does what it does very well and with some individuality. Basically French but sufficiently cosmopolitan to offer lemon soup (3s 6d), poulet Abufera with wild rice (14s 6d) and lamb cutlets Shrewsbury with a piquant sauce (12s 6d). Try the crème brûlée (5s 6d) or brandy snaps Chantilly afterwards. Wines by the carafe for about 12s; by the glass 3s 6d.

CELLIER DU MIDI, 23 Church Row, Hampstead, NW3 (HAM 9998). Henri Saux. Dinner only 6.30-11.30. C.S. This is a cellar, and the food does originate from the Midi. So if you want a truly authentic French regional meal it is worth ordering the casseroles: pot au feu (10s 6d) and boeuf Bourguignon (9s 6d) is very good, too. The soups, coffee and service are exactly as they ought to be. No licence; they will send out or you can bring your own for 3s corkage.

CORDON BLEU RESTAURANT, 31 Marylebone Ln, W1 (WEL 2931 & 3380). Rosemary Hume. Coffee 10-11.30; tea 3.45-5.30. C.S. and in evenings. All the cooking here is done by graduates of the Cordon Bleu Cookery School. So really this is a shop window for the school but a window for real shopping and not just for fun. The soups and egg dishes are good starters, the cold table really first class with main dishes about 10s. The sweets are outstanding. Wines by the carafe from 12s 6d, by the glass from 3s. They only take bookings for noon and 12.15 and it gets very crowded by 1 o'clock.

FONTAINEBLEAU WINE RESTAURANT, 3 Northumberland Av, WC 2 (WHI 1425). M Lejeune. Dinner 5.30-10.30. C.S. This rather dimly-lit basement restaurant has one of the most interesting wine lists in London—more than 200 French wines, all in half-bottles. The cheese board hasn't quite so many varieties as the wine list has, but it tries very nobly. So it is for the wine and cheese and not so much the food—which is perfectly all right and will cost about 20s a head—that one should make the pilgrimage to Northumberland Av. Being only in half-bottles the wines aren't quite so cheap as they appear at first glance. Upstairs is an ordinary coffee bar which stays open until 11 p.m.

LE MATELOT, 49 Elizabeth St, Eaton Sq, SW1 (SLO 1638). Hillary James. Dinner 6.30-11.30. C.S. lunch. A small informal restaurant with a Provencal bias to the menu: ratatouille (3s 6d), brochette de scampi Provencal with vegetables (15s), ris de veau Matelot (15s) and planked steak (17s 6d). Short wine list from 13s; by the glass 3s 6d.

MON PLAISIR, 21 Monmouth St, WC 2 (TEM 7243). J C Viala. No lunches. Dinner 6.10.30. This very popular place looks like a Paris bistro, and just like a Paris bistro serves good French bourgeois food. You must book and you must not be late in claiming your table or you may be turned away. The plat du jour (about 12s 6d) is worth trying, though the entrecôte Mon Plaisir (11s 6d), boeuf Bourguignon (9s 6d) and the rognons de veau Mâcon deserve investigation. Beer and wine licence; wine in carafes for 10s 6d, 6s 6d the half.

MIRABELLE, 36 Curzon St, W1 (GRO 4636). Lunch 1-3; dinner 7-11.30. Here you will eat in one of the most famous restaurants in Europe. The cooking is classically perfect, the service excellent, and the wine list almost an encyclopaedia of château-bottled clarets. (Where else in Britain will you be offered an 1882 Ch. Lafite, or an Imperial of 1889 Ch. Haut Brion for £38?) There is a minimum charge of 25s for lunch and 30s for dinner, but if you find you have spent more than £12 on a dinner for two, then don't blame me.

POULE AU POT, 231 Ebury St, SW1 (SLO 7763). David Hall & Charles Brodrie. Dinners only 6.30-11.30. Sound French bourgeois cooking, but whether you will be able to see what you are eating is a different matter for the room is kept in perpetual gloom. The coeurs d'artichauts (3s 6d), quiche Lorraine (4s 9d), are good starters; the canard à l'orange (13s), lapin aux deux moutardes (11s 6d), and the daube en gelée (9s) equally good main dishes. Reasonably priced wines; in carafe 6s 6d, or 12s, by the glass 3s 6d.

AU SAVARIN, 8 Charlotte St, W1 (MUS 7134). Mr Chris, Mr Theo. Dinner 6-11. C.S. The cost of a meal here won't be small but it will be good value. The menu is large, the cooking good, and the helpings more than enough for normal people. The pâté (5s 6d), scampi Provencal and taramosalata (4s 6d) are good to begin with. Follow them with escalopes (Au Savarin or Bel Paese 10s 6d), or the kidneys in red wine. Good sweet trolley. The wine list is not very cheap; it does include 10 Greek wines from 22s 6d if you have acquired the taste for these; others by the carafe for 15s, by the glass 4s 6d.

LA TOQUE BLANCHE, 21 Abingdon Rd, W8 (WES 5832). G Lourilleron. Dinner 7-10.45. A small, charming and often crowded restaurant with a highly skilled chef/proprietor who is a dab hand at soupe aux poissons, crêpe de fruits de mer.

(6s 6d), civet de lièvre (12s), langoustines à ma façon (13s), and ballotine de volaille Bressane (12s 6d). The cheeses are exceptional. The waiting is expert and supervised by la Patronne. On the wine list is a special connoisseurs' section: about 30 bottles, costing over £2, and very strong on the better Burgundies.

WOLFE'S, 11 Abingdon Rd, W1 (WES 6888). David Wolfe. Dinner 7-11.45. C.S. Wolfe's is a long, narrow restaurant, rather cramped but managing in spite of this to produce some of the most distinguished cooking in London. Mr Wolfe is a wine merchant, as well as a restaurateur. He is there in the evening and will give very sensible advice as to what to drink with the food he offers. The offerings have included lamb cutlets Ingrid (14s 6d), poussin au romarin (24s 6d for 2), 24 fresh snails for 34s and trout in red wine (14s 6d). It is the proprietor's avowed policy to shun tinned and frozen vegetables. Extensive wine list; carafes of Rioja (whole bottles!) 12s 6d; by the glass 3s

ITALIAN

BERTORELLI'S, 23 Shepherd's Bush Gn, W12 (SHE 2662). Bertorelli Brothers. Dinner 5.30-10. C.S. & M. evening. This is a friendly, inexpensive and old-fashioned place, like its parent restaurant in Charlotte St. The food is Italian and the menu is long: ravioli bolognese (3s 11d), osso buco (7s 3d), veal with peppers (8s 9d) and the jugged hare are some of their best dishes. The service is friendly and unhurried. Chianti in carafe 15s; by the glass 2s to 3s. An oasis in the desert of Shepherd's Bush.

BIAGI'S, 39 Upper Berkeley St, W1 (PAD 0394). Gianpiero Biagi. Dinner 6-11.45. A trattoria decorated with a nautical touch, though I hope they never have need to use the life-belts. The menu is long, Italian, and not wildly dear. The plats du jour are from 9s 6d to 12s 6d (including vegetables) and the à la carte main dishes cost about the same but without the garnishes. Peperoni all' olio (4s 6d), moules marinières or the lasagne should be good starters; there are salimbocca and scallopine alla crema for later on. The zabaglione or the sambucca would make a suitable finish to the meal. Mostly Italian wines; carafes at 9s and 15s, by the glass 2s 6d

CASA COMINETTI, 129 Rushey Gn, Catford, SE6 (HIT 2314). Bortolo (Matthew) and Silvio (Oscar) Cominetti. Dinner 5.30-8.30 (Sunday, lunch only 12.30-2). The Cominetts came to London with the Italian opera companies who sang at the old Crystal Palace. The singers went home—their cooks didn't. And now their descendants still serve better food than most similar places in London. Escalope oggi (10s), scampi casa (11s), and the sweetbreads Milanaise (8s 6d) are well worth trying. Wines by the carafe 6s 6d; by the glass 2s 6d.

GRAN SASSO 189a High St, Beckenham, Kent (BEC 0593). F and A di Gioacchino. Dinner 6-11 (Sun lunch 12.20-30; dinner 6-10.30). This is good by London standards—it is extraordinary by Beckenham's. An Italian place with good pastas and a number of specialities from about 4s 6d to 12s 6d. About 30 Italian wines from about 16s; by the glass 2s 6d

ner 6.45-10. The Quo Vadis is rather antiquated compared with the newer ristorante springing up like mushrooms all over the capital. But this large, crowded Soho restaurant wears its 40 years very lightly. The table d'hôte lunches and dinners (15s and 18s) are good value, the à la carte long and varied; naturally the pasta and veal here are good, so are the hors-d'oeuvre trolley, kidneys and duck. Long wine list; some by the carafe about 13s, by the glass 2s 6d

PASTICCERIA AMALFI, 31 Old Compton St, W1 (GER 7284). Mancini Carconi. Dinner 6-midnight. A small, busy, cheerful and cheap Italian café where the lasagne (4s 6d), cannelloni gratinati al' Amalfitana (4s 6d) and the tagliatelle (4s) are as good as anywhere in London and much cheaper. There are standard Italian main dishes from about 5s 6d to 10s 6d. The pastries, and the ice cream naturally, are very good. Wines by the glass 2s 6d

PIZZA HOUSE, 56 Goodge St, W1 (MUS 9590). Alfredo Olivelli. Dinner 5.30-11. C.S. lunch. A friendly place that never seems to change over the years, though the prices have moved up slightly since I first went there in 1958. The pastas, the pizza pies (of course) from 4s 6d to 6s are excellent value and reliable. Food always hot; service always quick; coffee (Espresso) strong. Wines from 12s 6d and by the glass 2s 3d

PORTOFINO, 39 Camden Passage, Islington, N1 (CAN 0884). Consigli Aquilino. Dinner 6-midnight. C.S. A trattoria in a narrow passage containing a colony of antique shops. In decent weather you can lunch on the pavement, and it is useful for a candlelit dinner (if you like that sort of thing) after the opera at Sadler's Wells. Cannelloni (5s 6d), chicken Sorpresa (13s 6d), veal Pizzaiola (9s 6d) are the things to order; the osso buco (8s) will repay investigation. Liqueur filled gateaux for afters. Carafes of red and white Chianti for 12s; by the glass 2s 6d

TIBERIO RESTAURANT, 22 Queen St, W1 (MAY 3561-3). Mario Cassandro, Franco Lagotola. No lunch Sat. Dinner 7-midnight. C.S. So often the words "dancing until 3 a.m." mean dismal food at absurd prices and tired service, but the Tiberio is the exception: the food is better than at most restaurants in Rome, and the prices are in keeping with the extremely elegant, modern decor. Artichoke soufflé (10s 6d), tagliatelle (9s 6d) to start with; whole duck braised in honey and curacao (46s 6d for two), or quails cooked on a spit with Roman salad (27s 6d) are very good. There are the more ordinary veal dishes from 15s 6d. All the wines are Italian and estate bottled, nothing under 27s 6d

TRATTORIA TERRAZZA, 19 Romilly St, W1 (GER 8991 & 3334). As Tiberio. Dinner 6-12. This bustling southern Italian restaurant now has four dining rooms in operation yet is always full. The cooking is influenced by the cuisine of the Amalfi coast: egg and kidney in Marsala (5s 6d), zuppa Terrazza (3s 6d) are good to begin with. For a main course the petto di pollo Sorpresa (15s 6d), calamari all' Luciana (ragout of baby octopus 10s 6d) and the grilled scampi are very good. Sweet pancake or caramelized orange for afterwards. Carafes of wine 13s 6d, by the glass 3s 6d

ZIA TERESA, 6 Hans Rd, SW3 (KEN 7634). Dinner 5.30-11. A splendid, inexpensive and busy restaurant with eager service and very good cooking. The pizza pies, pastas, polpettine (6s 6d), osso buco (9s), and the escalopes (from 7s 6d) are highly reliable. Sweets and coffee good. Moderately priced wine list; carafes of Chianti, by the glass 2s 3d

CENTRAL & EAST EUROPEAN

CHIEZ LUBA, 116 Draycott Av, SW3 (KEN 6523). Niki. Dinner 6-midnight. This, as well as being one of the most expensive, can be one of the best East European restaurants in London, particularly when the proprietor is on hand to see that all is well. The bortsch (2s 6d), mint-flavoured beef pancakes (3s), stuffed green peppers (8s 6d), beef Stroganoff (9s) and pojarsky (8s 6d), are all very good value. They take no bookings and you might have to queue for a while. No licence, so take your own wine; no corkage

MARYNKA, 232 Brompton Rd, SW3 (KEN 6753). Mr Stadnickiewicz. Dinner 6-11. The cooking here is Continental, but the proprietor is Polish and his national cuisine is reflected in the dishes. Start with bortsch (4s 6d hot, 5s 6d cold) then go on to the scampi in dill sauce (14s), grilled chicken Marynka (14s) or veal Marynka with mushrooms, peppers, cheese and anchovies for the same price. The place is small and the service friendly. Wines dearish; some by the glass 3s 6d

DORICE, 169a Finchley Rd, NW3 (MAI 6301). Mrs Balacs. Meals from 8 a.m.-11.30 p.m. If only there were more restaurants in London like this one, staying open as late and serving such cheap meals. The set lunch and dinner cost only 5s 6d, and the à la carte is no less reasonable: soups (1s 6d), chicken giblets in paprika sauce (4s 6d), zwiebelrostbraten (11s 6d), Kasseler rippenspeer (7s 6d), all with vegetables where appropriate. The Viennese pastries are good. Over 40 wines; by the glass 3s. Service sometimes could be quicker

GAY HUSSAR, 2 Greek St, W1 (GER 0973). Victor Sassic. Dinner 6.30-11. C.S. According to some expatriates this is the most authentic Hungarian restaurant we have in London, even though the menu has dishes from other parts of central and eastern Europe. The Hungarian hors-d'oeuvre (2s 6d), soups (1s 6d), beef goulash (8s), home-made sausage (8s); even the pies and flans are home-made. You will get a dish of fried potatoes and another of red cabbage whether you want them or not. No licence; bring your own wine, is a drinker corkage authentic Hungarian touches here include a Gipsy orchestra to entertain you in the evenings. Home-made brawn with onions and paprika (3s), goulash with rice or noodles (9s 6d), chicken Hongroise (9s 6d), fantanyeros (29s for 2) served in big helpings. Fifty wines including some estate-bottled Hungarian items; by the glass 3s 6d and 3s 6d

LE MIGNON, 2 Queensway, W2 (BAY 0093). Mrs M Pincus. Dinner 6-midnight. C.M. The

GERMAN FOOD CENTRE, 44-46 Knightsbridge, SW1 (BEL 7121). Restaurant manager, Mr C J Smith. Dinner 6.30-11. C.S. This is like a small food fair devoted to publicizing German products; there is a shop as well as a restaurant and all you buy here, in both sections, is genuine German produce. But like so many of this sort of national advertisement the restaurant has not held its promise quite so well as it might. There is a table d'hôte at lunch (pork goulash or hackbraten from 12s 6d, for example), and the à la carte costs about 5s for frankfurters, 11s for spätzle mit saurer leber, 11s 6d Kasseler rippenspeer, with other specialities up to 16s. More than 50 wines, none natur (i.e. unadorned), small carafes 6s 6d, quarter bottles of Sekt 7s 6d

HUNGARIAN CSÁRDA, 77 Dean St, W1 (GER 1261 & 4294). Mr Weisz. Dinner 6-11. C.S. This long-established Hungarian restaurant boasts a number of dishes on its menu that you probably won't be able to get elsewhere in London—at least not very often. Smoked sturgeon (7s 6d), hare in cream sauce (9s 6d), roast sucking pig with the proper appurtenances (10s 6d) and sholent with rindskamm. The goulash and cream cheese pancakes are very good. Long wine list with a number of Hungarian wines; carafes (7s) and by the glass (Tokay 3s 6d)

LUBA'S BISTRO, 6 Yeoman's Row, SW3 (KEN 2950). Mme Luba. Dinner 6-30-midnight. This little restaurant looks like a bistro but the flavour of its food is definitely Russian. Its prices are low. The bortsch (2s 6d), mint-flavoured beef pancakes (3s), stuffed green peppers (8s 6d), beef Stroganoff (9s) and pojarsky (8s 6d), are all very good value. They take no bookings and you might have to queue for a while. No licence, so take your own wine; no corkage

The place is small and the service friendly. Wines dearish; some by the glass 3s 6d

MAURER'S RESTAURANT, 9 Greek St, W1 (GER 4659). Frau Maurer. Dinner 6-11. C.S. Some people think this little German restaurant is a bit too shabby, but no one could deny that it is unique, even for Soho. It is simple, the menu is short, and the cooking is done by the owner in the back kitchen. Huge mixed hors-d'oeuvre (2s 6d), soups (1s 6d), beef goulash (8s), home-made sausage (8s); even the pies and flans are home-made. You will get a dish of fried potatoes and another of red cabbage whether you want them or not. No licence; bring your own wine, is a drinker corkage

POLONIA, 27 Grosvenor Gdns, SW1 (VIC 4614 & 6759). Mr Belski. Meals served 11 a.m.-10 p.m. This is a simple restaurant but it has a varied range of dishes, and as the main dishes include two vegetables the value is remarkably good. Begin with the hors-d'oeuvre de luxe (5s 6d), or eggs Florentine (5s), and for the next course boiled chicken (6s 6d), Vienna schnitzel (7s 6d) or tripe Polish style (6s). Wines by the glass 2s 6d to 3s; large range of bottled beers including some from Poland

SCHMIDT'S, 33 Charlotte St, W1 (MUS 8932). Mr F Schmidt. Meals served 12-10.30. We all know Schmidt's—that old-fashioned German restaurant on a variety of floors in a variety of long rooms where the food is plain, cheap and wholesome, and the waiting sometimes leaves much to be desired. Whatever the faults, it deserves a place here for the long, authentic and more than reasonably priced menu and wine list. In between frankfurters and sauerkraut (3s 6d) and Holstein Schnitzel (6s) there is a varied choice of German bourgeois dishes. German and English beers on draught; long wine list from about 13s, by the glass from 2s 3d

SILVER SPUR, 38 Thurloe Pl, SW7 (KEN 7717). Capt I Bindelski. Dinner 6-11.30. A tiny Polish restaurant which some people think is the best of its kind in London. The bortsch, chłodnik (soup with prawns) and the beef Stroganoff are very good; the chicken Kiev and the veal dish called Bristol are also worth trying. Allow about 30s a head for a full lunch, especially if it includes the Polish cream and sultana pancakes. Flasks of wine, and bottles of lager

Why Evening People like you go for the enticingly gleaming taste of Beefeater gin.

Nothing in this fretful world brings Evening People so close to bliss as their evening Beefeater.

The silvery clink of ice . . . the enticingly gleaming taste; the swift blossoming of wit . . . the evening launched into orbit. That is what Beefeater does for Evening People's evenings.

How? you might ask.

Well, it's a secret really, but as it's you we'll lift the veil a little.

To pure grain London spirit and water from our very own spring (a perfectionist foible we happily admit to) we add fragrant juniper berries, coriander, angelica, Seville orange peel and other herbs and spices which, even now, fill our loft with scent.

Our recipe demands that we distil three times, instead of the usual twice: another perfectionist touch which adds to the gleam of your Beefeater. To tell any more would be to flout our own Secrets Act, an Act which has remained unflouted these 140 years.

If you feel that your evenings, glittering though they are, lack something, it's probably because you don't welcome them with a Beefeater. Generations of Evening People have found that the enticingly gleaming taste of Beefeater is what sets the evenings aglow.

Why swim against the tide?

SAVOUR AN ENTICINGLY GLEAMING
BEEFEATER GIN THIS EVENING

RUSHDEN, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE

Here's the ideal Christmas present for people with an eye for colour, a feeling for history, a love of country life and a sense of occasion.

The Illustrated London News Christmas Number is not just a magazine made to look seasonal. It's a work of art in itself.

It includes 24 pages of superlative colour, together with a front cover reproducing Canaletto's breathtaking painting of Westminster Abbey. The latter ties in with a feature written to mark the Abbey's 900th anniversary. Then there will be over seven pages of colour on Royalty as artists, with paintings by Queen Victoria, the daughters of George III, and the Duchesses of Kent and Gloucester; a feature on how artists over the centuries have painted the River Thames; colour features on the Iranian Crown Jewels and animals of the Antarctic.

Holly Leaves will have something to interest you whoever you are. In colour, there's a decorative arrangement of the signs of the Zodiac; two pages of specially commissioned paintings of pheasants, by Dr Eric Ennion; a picture by Peter Biegel, the sporting artist, of the ride home after a day's hunting; a feature on Sussex church porches, and paintings of Joan of Arc, Herberford village in Devon, and the tinsel glamour of the Punch & Judy show. Black and white features include illustrated articles on the Witches of the North Country, Gamekeepers of the old days, Balloons and Airships, Engraved Glassware from the fourteenth to the nineteenth centuries, Thatching in East Anglia—and a Countryman's Quiz.

Old Dutch mastery in brilliant new bottle

There are experts who insist a Heineken is one of the finest examples of old Dutch mastery outside the museums. It's never up for sale in the auction rooms, but you'll find it being knocked down in bars and clubs by connoisseurs all over Britain (gold to the highest bidder!). There's one simple test of a genuine Heineken—its taste. Clear, cool, ebullient after the style of Hals, de Hoogh or just Heineken. If you can't frame it, at least you can name it—Heineken, Holland's ambassador extraordinary.

"How do you go about falling in love without hurting anyone?" says Ann Jellicoe, whose latest play Shelley opens at the Royal Court on 18 October. "One goes through life rocking people and being rocked by them. How do you handle it? It's the central problem today."

"I'm not treating Shelley as a poet or a propagandist—which he was—but as a man with a clear life-line and clear in his ideals, whose problems arose when life impinged on them. His problem, like ours, like everyone's, was to find moral standards."

"Plays should rehearse problems for people. Jesus Christ! make them feel. It is releasing to see it acted. It reassures people that they are not alone."

If Shelley is discovered to be different from Ann Jellicoe's previous plays—The Sport of My Mad Mother and The Knack—the difference is more in technique than approach. "I've tried to make the play as strong as possible", she says, "all the time thinking: story, story, story, character, story, character, story. I want the audience to wonder what is going to happen next. Previously, I've concentrated on showing the shifting relationships of a group of people. But I want to know my job thoroughly, to be expert. I like to be called a playwright, the idea of a dramatist is so literary, too precious".

Ann Jellicoe was born in Middlesbrough. She wanted to go to the theatre from the age of four. Eventually, she studied drama at the Central School of Speech & Drama and went through the familiar routine of stage-managing and directing in repertory.

Then she started the Cockpit Club, experimenting with a three-sided stage: "It made a profit on every production. I think the first one cost about £17 and gradually rose to somewhere round about £60—ridiculous, the price of a single costume these days. But we had something like £18 in the bank". Travelling in Sweden and Italy stimulated her to do translation work. Then she returned to the Central School to teach. She finds this an unsatisfactory occupation: "simply because you have to hold the students back all the time".

When the Observer announced its play competition, she sent them The Sport of My Mad Mother which won third prize: "Was awarded a prize" is the correct way to put that, I think. The Royal Court took it immediately. It was a flop d'estine.

"But it was way before its time, you know. I beat Pinter by about a fortnight. And it's having a great success now, being done all over the place in universities. It hits them here" (a resounding slap on the diaphragm) "rather than here" (a tap on the forehead).

In between that and The Knack she wrote another play: "The Girl Guides Association thought I'd like to write a nice play for teenagers. I told them that all teenagers were interested in was sex and jazz, but still they asked me to do it. And I made it tough, every line. I thought they can't possibly use this, and of course, they didn't".

Miss Jellicoe is herself directing Shelley. She looked slightly formidable giving her cast their post-rehearsal notes—sturdy legs, sensible shoes, tweed skirt, black-rimmed glasses. But she takes her glasses off to be introduced, pushes her hair back and enthusiastically demands whisky. There is something of the schoolgirl about her—the scrubbed face, the enthusiasm. It may have fooled the Girl Guides Association. If it did, they couldn't have heard the brutal directness of her opinions.

When asked how she reacted to the film of The Knack, she snaps: "No comment".

Why Shelley? "When I was at drama school I studied poetry speaking. It's so exacting, mentally and vocally. I got to know the Ode to the West Wind well, and so I thought about him on and off for some ten years. Then, two years ago, my husband and I were in Italy and we saw the house where he lived. We were interested enough to read a biography when we got back, that's how it started".

The play is described as "a tragicomedy based on the life of the poet". A hazard of plays "based on the life of" anyone—is that audiences worry about which is fact and which is dramatic fiction. Ann Jellicoe is firm on this point: "I've stuck to the facts—there's no point in fudging anything up. The problem rather was what to leave out. There is a mystery, of course—why did his relationship with Mary cool off? But it's obvious, obvious, the more you think about it. He got tired of her. She was ill, the children kept dying . . ."

Because of the success of the film of The Knack, she has no worries about money.

But she is diffident about success. "I think the success stakes among modern dramatists is absolutely obscene. What is important is whether you are satisfied with the job you've done, solving the problems attached to it."

"I had a taste of the success thing in America. I went into Sardi's with Mike Nichols. He introduced me to the head waiter saying he was directing my new play. The waiter fawned and said 'we could do with a success', and I knew he was waiting for it to fail. Jesus God! they're after your blood out there."

Albert Koski is in England to launch his new teenage scent on 15 October. Called Mouchi, after Koski's wife, it is aimed mainly at the age group between 15 and 25, costs 18s a box (two refills for 12s). Koski started work on Mouchi a year ago, and it was successfully launched in France this spring. It's a new venture for him. Born in Poland 26 years ago, he spent the war years in Russian refugee camps, lived in Paris from 1947-55, then moved with his family to New York where he worked as a Wall Street broker. As soon as he had made enough money to return to France, he did so; and met his future wife, an illustrator, on the boat across. In Paris he set up an agency for photographers and artists which has become a big and successful European concern.

The star of the Gang Show, which opens at Golders Green Hippodrome on Monday, 18 October, for two weeks, is Keith Skinner. We asked the show's director, Ralph Reader, about him. Mr. Reader sent us these notes: "Certainly one of the best prospects I have had with me for many years. He could quite easily eventually land up with a name comparable with some of the others who have passed through my hands, such as Tony Hancock, Norrie Paramor, Peter Sellers, Dick Emery, Cardew Robinson, Reg Dixon etc. He had an invitation after the filming of Mademoiselle was completed to spend two weeks with Miss Jeanne Moreau (who stars in the film) at her home near Paris, but he was so keen not to miss a Gang Show rehearsal, so he explained to Miss Moreau and did not accept the invitation. In this year's Gang Show, he is doing all the compère work and will be featured in the ATV spectacular when the Gang Show is on television later this year. He starts at RADA next term, and is being sent there by the film company for training as I gather their regard for his ability is high indeed. He has a tremendous sense of 'timing', which is natural to him, and I have had less coaching to do with him than any other boy I remember. He has a sense of humour—plus! Heaven help anyone who tries to be 'smart' with him. (Even I have to be careful). But his fun is 'all-boy' material and one of his greatest assets is that he remains his age. There are no 'stars' in the Gang Show, and Keith is one of 125. He lines up with the crowd in various numbers purely as a member of an ensemble. I believe in this because it keeps a boy remembering that he is solely a part of a team. It also is a great help for discipline—something almost extinct these days—but I believe Discipline went out when psychiatry came in! We don't deal with psychiatry in a Gang Show, we prefer Common Sense. Like all up-and-coming performers, Keith needs the right breaks. If he gets them, nothing will stop him from being one of the big names in the business."

This is Police Helmet Flashing Lamp model L 772. The manufacturers, Joseph Lucas Ltd., describe it as "an aid to police officers while they are controlling traffic at road junctions, accident scenes and crowded areas." A seven-foot cable runs down the inside or the outside of the policeman's helmet and down the policeman to a standard Lucas flasher unit. The electrical current is provided by a motor-cycle battery attached to the policeman or placed on the ground. It costs £210s.

Gerard Brach, the 38-year-old French scriptwriter, is now working on photographer David Bailey's first film. It is a bizarre 30-minute feature about a short-sighted Peeping Tom who works all day as a lens manufacturer and returns at night to his apartment, where an immense installation of lenses of various types embedded in the walls of his room enables him to follow the life of the model girl who lives next door in microscopic (and confusing) detail.

At the end of the film, the lens maker plans to murder the girl. He hides himself in her flat. When she enters, she goes straight to the gas stove and prepares to commit suicide. He saves her and becomes "a small hero". However the last shot of the film has him staring yet again through his lenses into her apartment.

Brach first came to England two years ago to script Roman Polanski's film Repulsion. On the road outside Abbeville, he ran into an Indian diplomat who had forgotten he was in France. Brach was in hospital for a fortnight and still shows two scars on his face.

Brach gives the impression of neat mobility. His face is round and athletic, his expression frank, slightly quizzical, slightly nervous. Like Polanski, he is very short. He began in films with publicity and production (Adieu Phillipine). He met Polanski in Poland, while working for Wajda, and became his closest collaborator. They scripted and made La Rivière du Diamond together in Amsterdam (one of the sketches in Les Plus Belles Escrocs du Monde), then the black comedy Aimez-vous les Femmes, (about which they are both very critical).

After Repulsion, they went north for three months to Holy Island and in isolated conditions made Cul de Sac another black comedy with Donald Pleasence and Françoise Dorleac which is now being edited. Their next film will be about vampires. They also have a Television play, showing on 1 Nov entitled The Girl Opposite and starring Dudley Moore. Part of the series Love Story, it tells of the love of a very short man for an extremely tall lady.

Brach speaks hardly a word of English. He writes in French (Repulsion and Cul de Sac were translated) and he talks to Polanski in French. He is instinctively suspicious of "star" actresses (Jeanne Moreau has une air méchante).

About England, he says "je n'aime pas que personne parle français", but he thinks we are "poli", which produces a sense of security. Both he and Polanski are disturbed by the way in which the water from the bath "overflows" in England, rattles into the street or yard instead of down a pipe as in France. And, of course, the food. "In France, you can remember a chicken for three years. In England . . . Where is Hogarth today?" (Polanski).

Maggy Sarragne, who opens at The Society on Monday, 18 October, used to be one of the leading fashion models in Paris. She won the title Miss Champs Elysées. She then decided to take up singing. "I never sing in my life," she says. "I met a wonderful maestro. He listened to my voice and he says: 'Maggy, you've got that!'" Miss Sarragne holds up her finger and thumb close together to indicate the minuteness of the maestro's estimate of her talent. The maestro persevered. After a while, he broke her voice. She could scarcely speak for two months. "But suddenly, one night, I begin to smile," she says. "I begin to sing beautifully. I don't know what happens to me. Old men begin to look at me. They say: 'You are not going to be opera-singer, Maggy. You are an actress. You are a clown.'"

While many of London's night clubs are suffering their worst crisis since the war, new discothèques continue to open and apparently to flourish. The next is likely to be a place in Mayfair which will be called Sybilla's. It is being started by a syndicate that includes: George Harrison of the Beatles; Alan Freeman, the disc-jockey; Bruce Higham, a young property dealer; Terry Howard, a photographer; and Kevin MacDonald, an advertising man.

The success of the new kind of club, as of the old, depends ultimately on an illusion: of excitement, of exclusiveness, of a sense of privilege in being present. This illusion is sustained by the careful choice of members.

Bruce Higham, who is 23, said: "We've got a mailing-list of 3,000 people which we've compiled over the past year or so. We've been offered £1,000 for it. There are models, photographers, even debes. Most of them have a little bit of money. All of them are reasonably successful. They're all young. They're the kind of people the colour supplements write about.

"People like to be in places where they recognize faces they know, the model-type, hang-around-type girls. Like the Ad Lib used to be. Everybody was there. I don't really know who Everybody is, but it was a very swinging clubby scene.

"I suppose Everybody is people who are beautiful or, if not beautiful, people who never look out of place. It's easier to define negatively. Sometimes, you go into a club, and everyone is swinging, and over in a corner you see three or four people looking at everyone else but who are somehow not part of the scene. Well, they're not Everybody. Everybody is talented people, people who are good at something. It doesn't really matter what they're good at—photography, or modelling, or making love fantastically well three times a night. What they have is a kind of self-confidence, an awareness, which they transpose to their environment.

"We want people who can live with the Beatles. Our members will have to be proposed, seconded and thirded, and then they'll come before the board of management. If suddenly we get an application from some incredible name we've never even heard of"—Mr. Higham paused a moment to contemplate this appalling possibility—"it wouldn't be automatic. We'd ask around and say: 'Well, who is this guy?'"

Sybilla's, named after Miss Sybilla Edmonstone, a member of the American Marshall Field store family, will have a membership fee of seven guineas a year, armchairs instead of the more customary discothèque stools, and air-conditioning. Five designers are submitting schemes for the interior.

"It's no good having a series of rooms," Mr. Higham said. "A club has to have a middle, otherwise you're sitting there thinking: 'What's happening over there?' So you go over there, and then you think: 'Well, what's happening back there?' People have to feel they're not missing anything, that everything's happening right there.

"Then there's the lighting. That's important. If you put a lot of beautiful women in green light they cease at once to be beautiful women. Then the men get all moody, and so the birds get all moody, and they all go home.

"The biggest mistake night club-owners make is trying to con people. This business of whipping the drinks off the table before you've finished. When Brian Morris was running the Ad Lib, he was marvellous. When you came in, he wrapped his arms round you. You cursed yourself that you hadn't been there the night before. It's making people feel wanted—that's all part of the exclusivity, part of being closely-knit. You've got to have people who feel at home there. If they don't they're not going to feel closely-knit to anything. They're going to sit there wondering how much the bill is going to be."

There is now a protest song protesting against protest singers. It has been written by a London advertising man, Mike Margolis, and recorded by a twenty-one year old music student who uses the professional name Micha. The record will be released by Pye towards the end of the month. Here are some of the verses.

Y'all heard the songs of Dylan B,

That stuff 'n all 'bout being set free,

The Bomb and people

earning high,

Penthouse flats, a walnut high-fi.

He's a protest singer.

Grabs guitar and sings it loud

Spreads the message round the crowd,

Gathered round the big Rolls Royce,

Pink, the colour of his choice.

Get me some o' that protest stuff.

He's a protest singer.

Drives the big car to his flat,

Penthouse with a Persian mat.

Butler greets him at the door,

Listen to the hi-fi roar,

Spinning round his new LP,

That's him protesting loud

The protest singer.

I just don't understand it.

What he's got to complain about?

I should be so lucky.

Protest singing is the thing,

Hear the money ting-a-ling,

Grab yourself a cheap guitar,

Hit the strings and fa-la-la.

Sing it loud and sing it

strong,

Sing it like you don't belong.

A protest singer.

It is a dismal irony that the protest song has become a commodity, synthetically manufactured, packaged and marketed, of the system against which it is protesting.

Some English protest singers, however, are genuinely committed. Bert Jansch, a 21-year-old folksinger from Edinburgh, says: "My songs are mostly about my life and the way I lead it. I see no point in protesting in songs unless you know it's going to do some good."

His attacks are always generalized, often obscure. This verse comes from a song called I have no time:

I have no time to spend with you,

You talk of nothing, what can you do?

You live like kings, and you know it's true

That if famine crossed the water that'd be the end of you.

He explains: "It's generally about the people who walk the streets, who always seem to be having a good time, with lots of money."

Alasdair Clayre, a 29-year-old former Fellow of

All Souls, sings mainly in East End clubs. He says he is more interested in tragedy than protest. It speaks for itself.

"Direct protest is exactly what I don't write," he says. "I write things on either side of it. The only way I can do this is to hear the feelings of people actually doing the suffering and leave myself out. The people who suffer always have the least voice."

His programme on the Thames lightermen, A Gentle Easy Flowing River, was broadcast recently on the Third Programme. He records people talking about their jobs and their lives, and writes songs out of the words they use.

"There's a sparseness and rhythm about the speech of a working-class Englishman when he's expressing his strongest emotions that fits easily into song form," Clayre says. This song, from one of his factory programmes, comes (indirectly) from a car worker of the older generation:

They were cut-throat years, you were fighting your mate,

With another man queueing for your job at the gate.

If the foreman didn't like your face one day

You got no work and you got no pay,

And I reckon I've served my time.

Ewan McColl, one of the leaders of the folk revival, says: "In traditional music, you never get a philosophical treatise like 'war is bad' which presents one with a conveyor-belt product." Like Clayre, he thinks that most good protest comes out of personal experience. He feels the word is over-used and that singers like Donovan and Dylan, who have never experienced the things they sing about, are just obtaining a reflex action out of the nihilistic feelings of despair in the air at the moment. He considers that songs like The Universal Soldier can be dangerous. "With general songs like that, instead of being moved to do something, you feel it's all being done."

But the main body of song-writers don't feel that tradition applies to their generation. Their songs are more vehicles of emotion and conscience than of careful thought and detachment. They are personal, like much sixth-form poetry. One of Marc Sullivan's songs includes the lines:

My future is approaching me with speed.

I cannot find my goal until it finds me.

To skip on through the night-time is my need Until the cloud will burst and set me free.

The cloud-burst he is referring to is his expulsion from college.

Vivien Leigh, playing the part of a Virginian divorcee, batters the faded billiard player, Lee Marvin, almost senseless with the heel of her shoe. These are two of the characters from Stanley Kramer's new film Ship of Fools. Adapted from Katherine Anne Porter's best selling novel of the same name about the voyage of the German freighter Vera in 1933 it has been liberally adapted by Abby Mann to accommodate an appropriate passenger list that also includes Simone Signoret (her first American production), Jose Ferrer, Oskar Werner, Elizabeth Ashley, George Segal and Jose Greco. The film, in black and white, will have its British premiere at the Odeon Leicester Square on 21 October.

Dr J Collis Browne's Invention

by Llew Gardner

DR J COLLIS BROWNE does not practise in Harley Street. You will not find him, white-coated and austere, exercising his charm in the private rooms of the London Clinic. He does not sign his name to indignant letters to The Times complaining about the lack of parking space for his Silver Cloud. Nor will he treat you on the NHS.

The doctor is dead. All that remains of him has rested in a Ramsgate churchyard since 1888. Yet there are thousands who at the first sign of illness place their trust in him rather than a living doctor, thousands who at the first sneeze or belly-ache rush to the chemist for the prescription the doctor first marketed more than 100 years ago. It is called Dr J Collis Browne's Chlorodyne. The good doctor may be dead, but his medicine, a mixture of opium, chloroform and other chemicals, tasting of peppermint-flavoured syrup of figs, lives on.

The manufacturers are not over-modest in their claims. The Chlorodyne may be used, they say, in the treatment of: Coughs, colds, influenza, diarrhoea, stomach chills, colic, flatulence, bronchitis, croup, whooping cough, neuralgia and rheumatism. His formula has survived virtually unchanged through 100 years of medical progress. In fact, since the introduction of the Health Service its sales have increased. Its morphine (opium extract) content is minute, but buying a bottle is probably the cheapest and easiest way of getting the drug. Earnest efforts have been made to have it put on prescription or banned. In the '20s the press campaigned against it with something of the public-spirited stridency that they now bring to Purple Hearts.

The advertisements for the medicine, mostly on London Transport, look as if they were written by the first copywriter—or by Dr Collis Browne himself. In the age of free medicine, the public pays out £150,000 a year for Dr Collis Browne's mixture. Its survival is remarkable—but no less remarkable than the man who invented it.

Dr Collis Browne seems to have been one of those restless men whose ideas are nearly always larger than their achievements. He invented a ship that sailed just under the water—but never mastered the problem of steering it. He invented a lifeboat davit—and tipped a boatload of Dover dignitaries into the sea demonstrating it. His Chlorodyne seems to have been his one real success.

He developed it in India where, as an Army surgeon, he sought a cure for the Asian Cholera which was rife among the British troops. He did not find a cure but he did find something which he thought was a cure and, by its action in restricting the movement of the gut, did make the illness more bearable. Returning to this country, he looked around for ways of putting his invention on the market. At first he met the kind of opposition that seems the inevitable companion of all success stories. In desperation he came near to selling the formula for a mere £200. Then he met a chemist by the name of John Thistlewood Davenport who agreed to manufacture the stuff from his shop in Great Russell Street. The fashionable gentry of Bloomsbury, who probably had a good deal more trouble with their bowels than they cared to admit, were among his first customers.

He was soon in demand outside Bloomsbury. Once, it is said, he hastened to Yorkshire to treat a dysentery outbreak. It is said that he didn't lose a patient and received a gold medal from a grateful Queen Victoria. At the beginning of the 20th century (Dr Collis Browne having died some years previously from a jaundice that not even his preparation could cure), the firm of J T Davenport manufacturing chemists moved to two cottages in Union Street on the South side of Southwark Bridge. The firm is still there though the cottages have given way to a more substantial brick-tiled building. From there in three-dram (2s) and one-ounce (3s 9d) bottles the medicine goes out to the world. The six chemists who prepare it are sworn to secrecy about just how the ingredients are mixed.

In Dr Collis Browne's time there were many to cry the praises of his preparation. Their yellowing testimonials rest in a safe in the Union Street premises. They are also printed on a leaflet provided with each bottle.

Here is Dr Gibbon, Army Medical Staff, Calcutta, to say with true gratitude: "two doses completely relieved me of diarrhoea."

The leaflet omits to say just how long ago Dr Gibbon was braving the rigours of Calcutta, nor does it tell us when W Vesalius Pettigrew, MD Hon FRCS England was lecturer in anatomy and physiology at St George's School of Medicine. But his tribute is there: "I have no hesitation in stating, after a fair trial of Chlorodyne, that I have never met with any medicine so efficacious as an Anti-Spasmodic and sedative. I have used it in Diarrhoea and other diseases, and am most perfectly satisfied with the results."

A touching picture of do-it-yourself medicine in high places is conjured up by the testimonial of Edward Whymper,

BILL MONAGHAN

Esq—"the celebrated mountaineer." On 16 February, 1897 he wrote: "I always carry Dr J Collis Browne's Chlorodyne with me on my travels, and have used it effectively on others on Mont Blanc."

But the most eloquent testimonial of all comes from Cassell's History of the Boer War: page 542. "Gaunter and gaunter grew the soldiers of the Queen. Hunger and sickness played havoc with those fine regiments. But somehow the RAMC managed to patch the men up with Chlorodyne and quinine."

You may think that the tributes are over-lyrical. But consider the effects of a draught of Dr Collis Browne's preparation as outlined in the leaflet:

"1st—A few moments after taking the Chlorodyne, a gentle heat is experienced at the stomach, succeeded by a general glow and relief from pain.

2nd—A tranquil, composed state gradually takes place, with or without sleep.

3rd—A comfortable and regular sleep of normal duration without coma ensues, during which a favourable change takes place; while the patient can be aroused at any moment.

4th—A small, weak, thready, hurried or bounding pulse increases to a full, yielding, elastic, natural one decreasing in frequency of beats as well as resistance, and returning to a healthy condition."

One feels better just reading the leaflet. But alas, the leaflets may soon be collectors' items. A spokesman for the manufacturers told me that a new one is being prepared.

Yet the advertized effects are very similar to the praise of the medicine I heard from someone who takes it whenever his stomach is upset: "It's wonderful stuff. First you get this lovely warm glow in the stomach. Then you feel at peace with the world and finally you drift off into this beautiful sleep. I can't imagine life without it."

Not everyone looks on Chlorodyne with such gratitude. Dr Michael Conlon, Senior Registrar at All Saints Hospital, Birmingham, considers it "a potentially dangerous drug" which should be on prescription.

The Home Office says: "It is not a drug of addiction, though there have been suggestions from time to time that the contents should be changed. There is some suggestion that it is habit-forming." The Ministry of Health says much the same thing, adding: "It has very, very minute quantities of morphine in it. But you'd have to drink a gallon of it to affect you."

I asked a spokesman for J T Davenport's to comment on the allegation that the product was

DR J COLLIS BROWNE

"potentially dangerous." His reply was: "No comment. We are just manufacturing chemists. It is up to the Government to decide what is dangerous and what is not."

For the moment, the Government view appears to be that, despite some contrary evidence, the medicine is not dangerous. Its morphine content is below the 2 per cent which would bring it within the dangerous drugs regulations.

One man who is quite convinced that the medicine is a most admirable product is Major J Collis Browne, grandson of the inventor. The Major is nearly 80. He lives at Birdham in Sussex. I found him about to sit down to a game of poker in the West Sussex Club in Chichester.

"Oh, it's wonderful stuff," he said. "I always take it whenever I have a cold or a stomach upset." The club barman interrupted our conversation to say: "The Major's right. I always had a bottle with me in the desert and I never had any trouble with dysentery."

Major Browne is the largest single shareholder. The other shares are held by the remaining members of the Davenport family. Is it a profitable business? I asked.

"Profitable?" echoed the Major. "Of course it's profitable. I wouldn't be able to sit here doing — all if it wasn't, would I?"

David Mlinaric, interior decorator, 26 years old, son of a Yugoslavian father and an English mother. Went to school at Downside. Originally wanted to be a painter, then an architect. Studied at the Bartlett School of Architecture for three years, worked for Michael Inchbald, the interior designer, for two years, then studied privately in Rome. 18 months ago started his own firm of interior decorating. Since then has been ceaselessly busy, most of his commissions coming from word-of-mouth recommendation. Has decorated a hotel in Hampshire, a small restaurant in Brighton, as well as offices, private houses, and special schemes for dances. Is planning to open in November a furniture and antique shop in Lower Sloane Street

Kerry Dundas

He is dressed in a darkly striped suit buttoned nearly up to the throat over a pink shirt, a plum tie. He designed the suit himself; it was made by Billings & Edmonds, an old-established and one would have said conservative tailor for public schoolboys. "They've made suits for me since I was at school. No, they love making the suits I design, and the person who likes them best is I think the oldest man there, so there you are." Over this suit is a neat, anxious face, and a fair amount of neat blond hair. He talks in short diffident bursts; it isn't until you go away and think over what he says that you realise how strongly he feels about it. One of the subjects he rattles on about is the low standard of taste in this country: "Interior design should be as much a matter of fashion as clothes, but it's not, here. Carpets, for instance, carpet manufacturers say look, it'll last a lifetime. Well, who wants carpets to last a lifetime? What one wants is good colours and good patterns that are cheap enough to be discardable when you get tired of them." He works in a great room in Chelsea built by Sargent to show off his paintings to clients. 40 feet of deep plum walls edged at the top with two rows of grey hessian binding, 90 yards of burnt orange curtains selflessly hand-made by two of his staff, a German metal and painted porcelain gasolier that looks as if it had grown in the room like a stalactite, drop by wrought-iron drop. In this room, at a first confused glance, are a glossy gang of people, darting in and out and chatting endlessly. This gang is his staff of five, all under 27, all wildly enthusiastic about the work, each other (off and on: "one minute we're at loggerheads and practically knocking each other on the head, the next we're roaring with laughter" says Sarah Curzon), and David Mlinaric. They call him Monster, and so does everybody else "Except my clients and my mother and father. It's not the sort of name parents care for, for their son."

Of the five, only two trained as decorators. Piers de Westenholz until 18 months ago spent six months out of every year ski-ing, and represented Great Britain in the 1964 Olympics at Innsbruck. But he always wanted to be a decorator, and at David's suggestion studied privately under the same professor as David. Michael Sumner, 26 and the oldest member of the staff, took a three year course at the Bartlett School of Architecture. He vaguely remembers wanting to be "something romantic, like a farmer" when he was at school, but drifted into accountancy when he left. "I started interior decorating just as a job, too, but then it took me over". Melanie Franklin, who does what is briskly called general administration ("We all muck in though, finding materials, doing estimates, running jobs"), used to be a model; so did Sarah Curzon ("Now I do anything the others can't be bothered to, Sarah's undersecretary, they say.") And she will be in charge of the shop when it opens in November. Tessa Elwes, 26 years old and with three sons from 6½ downwards, met David in April and started working for him straight away. "I mostly check on work at the sites, which means, really, having common sense and an eye for the right shape and size."

Currently the firm has around 20 jobs on its books; they break down into two dances, one hotel, one small block of offices, and the rest private houses, of which four are complete conversions, probably taking about two years to finish. Decorating for a dance takes about two months, from first thought to completion. Last July Mlinaric did the setting (see illustration) for Lady Harlech's dance for her children, Jane, Victoria and Julian Ormsby-Gore. "I planned it for a month, then did the drawing, and it took the six of us about a week to fix. The dance was in a marquee, which we lined with dark green, and everything else was in orange and gold. The bandstand was in the centre—rococo/baroque/art nouveau/the lot—and people danced round it." His years at Bartlett (where the first piece of work he did was a line and ink-wash architectural drawing of such intricate accuracy that it took three months to complete) have instilled in him a knowledge of classical and traditional methods and an austere attention to detail. Which means that he is not very much for the "I always think aubergine looks so right with prune and I think I can find you just the little break-front for that niche" type decorator.

"I think all work should begin on the drawing-board, and decorating must start with the architecture of the room. I really prefer doing basic decorating jobs rather than just decorating two or three rooms, though that can be fun. If you get the once-in-a-lifetime things right, the doors, the floors, the fireplaces, then the guts of a room are all right, and it doesn't matter too much if someone comes along and puts vile eau de nil on the walls, the good bones will still show through. It would be pretentious to call interior decorating an art, when I say art I think of the Tate Gallery, but it is one of the minor arts, and it is a service to the client—every job is 5% inspiration, 95% slog". One of the reasons for the slog, he says bitterly, is the exasperating delivery dates in this country.

"You can get stuff delivered from New York or Paris quicker than from the North of England, and English manufacturers are infuriatingly complacent about it. If you ask for 30 yards of fabric to be delivered tomorrow, they look at you as though you're insane. British Railways don't deliver on a Friday, they say, or it's gone to dispatch, they say, or some other maddening excuse. And you can't expect clients to wait 14 weeks for something, you tell them they're going to like; they want to go somewhere and see a choice of three this instant, and I don't blame them."

He likes to work with strong colours, natural textures and fabrics. "Matching fabrics and wallpapers, wood floors, undyed cloth. I've wanted for ages simply to polish plasterwork and leave it, but no one has let me do it, so far. People have no self-confidence about their decorating, they don't mind risking a bold seven guinea dress and chucking it away if their friends don't like it, but they can't chuck away a room. And what their friends think plays a big part with the English."

"Monster" has a great but vague charm rather misleadingly overlaying cool-eyed efficiency. Though at first sight his office looks as though a game were being played in it, you soon discover that the game is chess, not snakes and ladders.

who started as a chef in Peking 31 years ago at the age of 15. He has worked in some of the most famous restaurants in China, and was chef to the Communist Chinese Ambassador here in London. He defected because he disliked "indulging in bouts of ritualistic self-criticism", and was frustrated by the repetitive nature of Embassy food. He has a repertoire of 1500 dishes, but specializes in Northern Chinese food (quite different to the better-known Southern type). Favourite European dish is salt beef, his speciality Peking Duck. "He makes fantastic candied apples dipped in boiling honey. Like toffee apples only much better".

Since September, girls with narrow feet have been getting cards through the post from Elliott's, who specialize in narrow-fitting shoes. The cards carry pictures of 43 Elliott shoes and the game is to pick the one you like. Then either take the card to an Elliott shop (three London branches, 14 country) or have the shoes sent on approval. Elliott's began their mailing lists in 1958, sending out 2,000 copies of a small brochure. Now they work on a list of 48-50,000 with additional requests each season of 10,000. You get on the list by trying on a narrow-fitting shoe in an Elliott branch, they will automatically take your name and address. If there is no Elliott's near you, write to one of their London branches.

Londoners are tending more and more to decorate their kitchens in a country way. This involves pine walls, quarry-tiled floors, tables that have to be scrubbed every day, Welsh dressers and rush matting. Two shops opened in London this year that cater for this country-house-in-London-look. Mullengers, Chiltern Street, W 1, deals only in country kitchen ware. Its owner, Ronald Mullenger, is a writer who says he got sick and tired of the sterile, clinical look of most contemporary kitchens, and opened a shop where he could gather together simple, good and traditional designs. The clock at the top of the page comes from Mullengers, and he specializes in pine furniture—a large dresser with brass handles costs £40, a matching solidly built kitchen table £16 (both to order in three or four weeks). Bouskell's, 23 Beauchamp Place, SW 1, takes a sporting line. James Bouskell, who owns the shop and lives above it, has collected china and glass, prints and table mats, all with a hunting shooting or fishing background.

1 Peter Blake

The photograph on our pull-out, pages 41 & 42, comes from Lord Snowdon's book on the London art scene Private View published this week by Nelsons at 7 guineas. Blake's exhibition, opening at the Robert Fraser Gallery next Wednesday, 20 October, will be almost exclusively of paintings rather than of his widely known object-familiars like those shown on our gatefold. The pictures are fantasy-portraits of wrestlers, boxers and strippers as well as portraits of fantasy-enhanced people like David Hockney and the Beatles. Some of the pictures are recent, some have been on and off the easel over a number of years

The exhibition of 23 paintings by Peter Blake is at the Robert Fraser Gallery, 69 Duke St. W1 (MAY 7196) from 20 Oct to 20 Nov (and tentatively later), daily 10-5 30 Mon to Fri. Sat 11-1

2 This is the Cory Band in 1901

The band was founded in 1884, in the Rhondda village of Ton Pentre, and called the Ton Temperance Band. Their name was changed to the Cory Workmen's Band in 1895, when Sir Clifford Cory, chairman of Cory Coal, apparently deeply impressed by their rendering of Welsh melodies and Hume's Elephant at the opening of the Gelli library and workmen's club for colliery members, took charge of them, subsidizing them and finding them a director of music.

The workmen had ½d. a week taken from their wage packets, and in those days they always played standing up, and would march through the streets carrying lanterns.

In 1921, when Marconi visited Wales, one of their members played into a "telephone" mechanism, which he transmitted to a chapel a mile away.

Since 1901 there have been few changes in instruments, but now they play sitting down. Their range has considerably extended: they play Dvorak, Bach, Gilbert Vinter. The younger members feel that brass band music has "more respect about it today."

The Cory Band have won the Welsh National Eisteddfod six times, but, though they were runners-up in 1948, they have never won the National Brass Bands Championship.

The Championship will be held next Saturday, 16 October, when 2,400 players from 93 bands will compete in five divisions. The Championship section will be held at the Albert Hall from 9 a.m.-4 p.m., the second section will compete at Kensington Town Hall, the third section at Fulham Town Hall and the fourth section and youth championship at Hammersmith Town Hall, all from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Tickets are often heavily booked by band members in advance. For information about the contest and the massed band concerts at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. apply to the Royal Albert Hall (KEN 8212). For information about the other divisions, for which tickets and information will be available on, but not before, 16 October, phone or go to Kensington Town Hall, Kensington High Street, W 8 (WES 7211); Fulham Town Hall, 553 Fulham Road, SW 6 (FUL 1212), or Hammersmith Town Hall, King Street, Hammersmith, W 6 (RIV 3020).

GIRL TALK

A dialogue between

KATHY COLLIER (26; has a ten-year-old son; works in a butter factory) and
NELL DUNN (29; married, with two sons; author of Up the Junction)

66 NELL. If you see someone you fancy, how do you go about getting him interested in you?

KATHY. Do you mean in a pub or something like that? If he starts asking you if you want a drink you know you're on the firm.

NELL. Would you ever get married again?

KATHY. I don't know really. It's such a long time ago. I don't think of myself as ever being married really.

NELL. How old were you when you were married?

KATHY. Sixteen.

NELL. And you stopped being married when you were how old?

KATHY. Twenty-two. The thing is it's all right if you're young and you've got a place, that's the whole thing, if you've got a flat then you know you've got responsibilities but if you live at home . . .

NELL. You never left your mum?

KATHY. No. If you live at home and then you've got your mother and all that, you know . . .

NELL. It's just the same as having your boy-friend in for the night?

KATHY. Of course it is, it's just the same isn't it? Whereas if you've got a flat of your own you go and work and you can buy things, whereas if you're at home and you've got one room, what can you buy really? Whereas if you've got a flat, that is the whole thing of getting married, you go out to work and buy something every week and that is the point of it really, isn't it?

NELL. Do you think life is very hard?

KATHY. Yes, definitely.

NELL. In what way?

KATHY. Well in every way I think so. I'm not sad about going to work because I don't mind working, I'd rather go to work than be home all day. Unless like maybe I had young children. But I think you find that by being home all day you get bored whereas if you go to work it does take it off a bit. And you've got something to come home to and all that. But what is there really anyway in life? It's the same thing really day after day isn't it?

NELL. What does one live for?

KATHY. I don't know. Not yourself, that's obvious. Unless you've got kids, maybe your kids, you live for. But it is the same thing, you go and have a drink, you go to the pictures, it is the same thing day after day.

NELL. Even if you've got kids, it's the same thing, you wash them and clean them and get them up.

KATHY. You get them out to school in the morning, same thing isn't it? I think it is hard, I mean it should be entirely different I think.

NELL. But you could never imagine committing suicide for instance?

KATHY. I could imagine committing suicide, yes.

NELL. In what moments have you thought of it?

KATHY. Oh you know, something—I've really been upset about something and I have really thought of doing it, yes.

NELL. How would you do it then?

KATHY. I thought about gassing myself.

NELL. It'd cost you two or three bob in the meter.

KATHY. Mind you, it does need a lot. When you think of it again, it does need a hell of a lot of nerve.

NELL. Do you think you know what's going to happen in the next world?

KATHY. No. I don't know whether I really think there is anything—another world. Do you?

NELL. No I don't. Are you frightened of dying?

KATHY. No.

NELL. Why not?

KATHY. Well that's the whole thing, you don't know what's going to happen to you. If you didn't if you did—I mean no one will ever be able to tell you that, will they? If you did know, I think it would be more frightening then. You could be anywhere you could be in the street for instance, you could drop dead, nothing—you wouldn't know anything about it would you?

NELL. Do you find most people are frightened of death?

KATHY. Most people are, yes.

NELL. People don't discuss it very much do they?

KATHY. No they don't. And I find that people—a very funny thing about—you know, somebody—they might not like somebody like say, somebody down the street, they live in, for instance, and they're always sort of talking about that person, they don't like them and all their bad faults and everything like that, and then when they die, that's what makes me

Eating and drinking mean plates and dishes and cups and saucers. And knives and forks and spoons. All needing washing up, then being used, getting dirty again. Whether there's just the two of you, or you've a big family, you need—you deserve—a Colston fully automatic dishwasher!

The Colston automatically washes, rinses twice and power-dries up to 40 pieces of china, 45 of cutlery... gets equally sparkling clean results if you put in just a few pieces, or leave things over until the next meal. It's won design and efficiency awards, is very compact, needs no special plumbing (no installation costs!) Yet the Colston costs only 79 gns, or easy terms: is guaranteed and backed by a nation-wide network of service engineers. To get the washing up off your hands, post this coupon for a free, illustrated booklet today!

laugh—when they die they have the cheek to turn round and say "Oh what a nice person." Or "Oh, he was a lovely man!" Don't they though? I was just talking about that to somebody the other day.

NELL. They don't like to put bad words on to the dead, is it?

KATHY. You'll find that out later on, by somebody, but they should turn round and say "Oh I didn't like him"; I think that they should say that, be straight and say it. But they don't, they say "Oh well he's a nice fellow" and that and maybe a week before they were just giving him a bad name. That's the type of people there is and I think everyone should leave everyone alone to lead their own sort of life, I think so. You find that if people didn't interfere and—

NELL. This is terribly true—people ruin each other's lives, make them miserable. Particularly in a place which is very kind of close together like Battersea for instance, where you really can't do anything without everyone knowing, can you?

KATHY. Course you can't, no.

NELL. Does it worry you at all what people think of you?

KATHY. No.

NELL. You're very good about that, you don't really care do you?

KATHY. Well I think while they're talking about you they're leaving somebody else alone and what can talk do anyway? What can it do?

NELL. Upset you.

KATHY. Well it can upset you, yes, but you get over it, don't you? Whereas if you know, most probably if you know it's the truth, and then it hurts you, but people just gossip don't they? If you know that's not the truth you don't bother, you can walk past with your head up, that's what I think. It does hurt you, I must admit it does hurt you when someone says something about you and it is the truth.

NELL. But do you hear a lot of things that have been said about you at various times?

KATHY. Not much really, no. Most probably people do and you don't even hear about it. I don't think I really ever have. I find that I sort of get on with people and—like my friends for instance, I always keep a friend. I don't have one for maybe six months, I like to have a friend for a long time, I've got a friend who's a friend for life, really a true friend, you've got a friend for life, you know what I mean?

NELL. Do you never fall out with Jean?

KATHY. No, I never have since when we were kids.

NELL. For instance, when I was living in Lavender Road, you didn't seem to see so much of Jean then. She was just married I suppose?

KATHY. She was just married, yes. And then I didn't see a lot of her she used to be out and about.

NELL. Was she very smart when she was out?

KATHY. She was, she was very smart yes. He used to play in the band, and he used to take her everywhere and everywhere he went she used to go with him and that type of thing. And then they find mates, the men, they find mates you see. Playing in the band that's the worst thing you can have really. They were very close, you know, it's very hard to believe really. And then all of a sudden they start getting out with their mates one night a week, and then it's two nights.

NELL. But what do they do, I mean what's the point of going out with the boys, as it were, what do they do?

KATHY. They go out and have—some men they just go out and have a good drink, some men go out to pick up girls, different, something different, isn't it?

They're just not satisfied, I mean some men come home and give their money and they're as nice as anything and the next minute they might be out with somebody else. That's the whole point.

NELL. What do you think the meaning of that expression "having a good time"—what does "having a good time" mean to you?

KATHY. Well, going to parties and that sort of thing, mixing with people. Different people. Mostly all your friends but then when you go to parties there always is somebody different there. I like parties or going swimming and that sort of thing, sport, really. I get a lot of fun out of that, going out for the day and going swimming you know, a crowd of you, and having a drink and that type of thing.

NELL. You prefer that really to a quiet life? A place and being in each night.

KATHY. Really, yes.

NELL. That wouldn't suit you?

KATHY. No. I did have a go at that.

NELL. How long did you have a go at that for?

KATHY. Six years. Most probably if you'd got the right type of person, you think enough of a person—there is a time that you do find somebody. Like somebody said to me like, somebody was married, just got married because all his mates were getting married and he was on his own. All his mates got married and it sort of left him, you know? So the first girl, you know, a nice girl he got to taking out, he got married, not because he was in love with the girl or anything like that and he just used to say to himself "Well, if I ever found somebody that I really fancy, I really, I was really in love with, I'd be gone and that would just be the end of it." You know, you go on and on looking for somebody.

NELL. Do you think people don't have much sort of respect for marriage now?

KATHY. No they don't. Like years ago. Like my mum—you hear them talking about years ago.

NELL. Your husband was your husband and that was it.

KATHY. That was it, yes. You were married and you were married.

66 They might go out to a celebrity club over the West End have a meal and have a show

NELL. You mean people didn't carry on much then?

KATHY. Well they did carry on but you didn't hear as much of it then as what you do now. As for lesbians, my mum never heard of anything like that. Like just lately, you know? My mum never knew what it was.

NELL. Is there a lot about it just lately, lesbians?

KATHY. Oh there is more, yes. Definitely. I mean everywhere you go.

NELL. Do you see lesbians in Battersea?

KATHY. Oh yes. There's lots in Battersea now. What about that girl who was in the pub and you said you'd like to sketch her one night, she was singing on the mike, that girl who was a prostitute. What about her? I mean she's married, got two kids, she's been married twice got two kids she was on the game and she's turned lesbian. Who'd ever believe that? I was out the other night somewhere, I was sitting in the pictures and I was shocked, she was sitting down in front of me, kissing and cuddling with this—yes.

NELL. With a girl?

KATHY. Yes. She could have been no more than twenty. Very very timid looking thing and she's a great big sort isn't she?

NELL. Isn't that amazing? They could get arrested, couldn't they, Kath?

KATHY. They can't apparently.

NELL. Can't they?

KATHY. No. She was in the show and everything, in the Cricketers.

NELL. They can kiss and cuddle with a girl and not get arrested? I didn't know that. I thought it was illegal.

KATHY. Lots of people don't know, do they, that they're girls, do they?

NELL. They're dressed like men?

KATHY. She dresses like a man and everything, you know.

NELL. Or could you see straight away she was a woman?

KATHY. I could, I could myself, I mean lots of people might not, some people are very stupid, like my mum for instance, you know what I mean? Or my dad like, we were in a pub and my dad didn't even know that somebody was like it. My dad didn't believe it, they're old-fashioned really, you see they didn't see it going on much in their time and they expect it's still the same. That's the thing.

NELL. Do you think people are born queers or lesbians or do they just turn that way from bad influence?

KATHY. I think some are. Some it is born in them I think. Or some of them—with men—I think it's a lot to do with their mothers, say for instance the only child—you don't often find that—that it is the only child, it might be a big family, I know there's a big family of twelve kids and one of the roughest, one of the roughest fellows that you could ever wish to meet and he got three years' imprisonment and I was out one night and this queer kept sort of looking on, we were having a drink and this queer kept sort of looking and I was shocked, I saw this fellow there, we'd been friends since we was kids and he'd been in prison and anyway he had to leave. This queer who he was with made him leave the pub because he kept looking at him. I was never so shocked in all my life to see him like it.

NELL. How extraordinary, Kath. You just can't trust anyone.

KATHY. They can't help it, I think they should be left alone, it's their life.

NELL. Do you? It doesn't matter?

KATHY. It is disgusting to us, really, but if they don't interfere with anyone then why not let them get on with it? Same as man and wife are probably disgusting to them. I think they should be left alone, let them do what they like.

NELL. What do you think the most important thing in life is?

KATHY. Money. Money, yes. There is a lot of things you can do with money.

NELL. Like what sort of things? Once you've got a place.

KATHY. Buy things and here's a hell of a lot that people can do with money what people can't who haven't got it. The most important thing I think is for two people to be happy really, with each other I think that's the most important thing. If you do find someone—you can be really happy with, because you do find even if you haven't got—as I said before—if you haven't got anything you find that you can be happy with a person, if you haven't got two halfpennies really. Whereas some people they've got everything and they're not happy at all, they look for happiness elsewhere. I think so.

NELL. Finally, if you've got everything what left is there for you to buy? So what can you do?

KATHY. That's the whole point.

NELL. And you see these rich women down the West End, you know just sour old bitches with the smartest clothes on, what good does it do them?

KATHY. Nothing at all. They might as well go about in rags and be happy.

NELL. That's true, they can't get lovers, no one wants them. Probably don't have any sex.

KATHY. No. You could probably find a person who hasn't got anything they haven't got any clothes or anything like that, but you could find that some people would really fancy them, be in love with them, and they haven't got anything at all. You do find that yes.

NELL. What age do you think a man's at his best?

KATHY. Twenty-five to thirty.

NELL. And a woman?

KATHY. Twenty-five, twenty-six.

NELL. I think it's quite true this, because one's at one's prime of life.

KATHY. When you get near thirty.

NELL. You're at your best?

KATHY. Yes. Towards thirtyish.

NELL. Because you know about everything and you're still young?

KATHY. Yes, you know everything. That's true, yes. If you have kids, I think that's a good thing as well.

NELL. But don't you think life might be sort of empty when you're about forty-five?

KATHY. Not really, no. It all depends what type of partner you've got really. Like for instance Jean's mum and dad. She's got a grown-up family, they're all married and Jean's mum's sixty but they go out, and have a drink and they're a really happy couple.

NELL. And is her mum nice?

KATHY. She is, very attractive. You wouldn't think her mum was sixty, to have a grown up family. She doesn't come out a lot during the day but they sort of please their self what they do. They might go out to a celebrity club over the West End have a meal, and have a show, you know, and please their self you know.

NELL. Have they got a nice place?

KATHY. Very lovely place they've got. They've got everything. Very devoted. They're a very close family. Now they're all grown up and they're married and they're very close, to their mother. They're all for their mother and father.

NELL. Do you think you've made any big mistakes in the past?

KATHY. Definitely.

NELL. Like what?

KATHY. Getting married when I was sixteen.

NELL. You should just never have got married?

KATHY. No.

NELL. What could you have done, said to your Mum "I just don't want to get married"?

KATHY. Mum didn't want me to get married.

NELL. Well why did you then?

KATHY. Well, you just think you're having a baby and that's the whole thing really. The point is, you don't get married anyway really unless you're really mad at sixteen, unless you're expecting a baby really. And then you've got to think about the baby and by then, well you are sort of a baby yourself and then when something like that happens you—overnight you're grown up.

NELL. Did you feel terrible when you were having the baby? Worried and everything?

KATHY. Not really, because I find that you get a lot of advice, specially when you are young. Years ago people did have children young, lots of people but girls now they get married when they're eighteen, twenty, that's not too bad but when you're sixteen—

NELL. That's very young.

KATHY. And it doesn't matter what people tell you. People tell you all sorts of things but you don't really know what's going to happen. Like if it's your first baby people say /continued p 52 you know, this was terrible in labour and all this type of thing which I don't think they should tell you that, it does frighten you really everyone's frightened I think so. But you don't know what's going to happen yourself, you've got to sort of experience that you don't really know what you are going through. Then when you do go through it you find it's entirely different to what people tell you.

NELL. What did you feel when you first saw Michael?

KATHY. I don't know. It just seemed impossible really. It does. It really seems impossible, you don't think that it is you that's had it, you know what I mean? Really marvellous. Specially if you're feeling all right in yourself and everything. Some people have bad confinements and others are quite all right. Specially when you're young you don't think it really is you who's had a baby really. Someone says "You've got a lovely son" and you look round to see who they're talking to. I find when I look back you can't explain it really. I don't think so, to anyone. It's very hard to put it down you know, you wanted to write about it. It's just a feeling you've got and it's very hard to tell anybody else about it. It's a really marvellous feeling to have a baby, but it's very hard to explain it to anybody else when you think about it. Even then, you know you think to yourself the mistakes you've made and all that but when you look back on it I think it's marvellous. You forget. At the time I, even then I thought to myself "what a mistake I've made getting married" at the time when I had Michael you sort of forget all about that and think to yourself you're going to try and make a go of it. When you've got a baby you try and be nice and that type of thing. Make a go of it and make it last. You find it doesn't work out like that always does it?

NELL. Do you think you can, if things are really bad, do you think effort alone can make a marriage work?

KATHY. Sometimes. Sometimes it can. I think the best thing to do, if you've enough guts, if you do feel like that, towards, somebody, you think you've made a mistake, if you've got enough guts and you've got somewhere to go I think the best thing to do is get out. I think so myself. But you find that's not always possible. Lots of people won't take you in with a kid, you've got to go to work to keep them anyway. But if you can find somebody or somebody to look after them I think the best thing to do, that is. Because it's only spoiling both your lives and the longer it goes on whereas one person thinks a hell of a lot of the other person and the other one's got no feelings at all, you're just spoiling both your lives really. You should if you can get out. It's hard; it's easy for people to talk about it, but you do find it is impossible because—for instance where money—if you've got money you can. Whereas if you've got nothing with a kid, you do find it very hard. Whereas if you've got money, it doesn't matter who it is, if you've got money, people will take you in. Give them a few quid and everything's quiet really.

NELL. But how important do you think sex is in a relationship between people?

KATHY. I think it's the most important thing, really. Myself, really. Well that is the whole point, that is the whole part of it really.

NELL. Do you think a lot of marriage and things break up because it's no good?

KATHY. Yes, definitely. You find men going somewhere else, picking up something else. Just for sex. They might be happy in the home and all that type of thing. "Well I love my wife" as I say, come home and give them wages every week and that type of thing, you know, whereas they go elsewhere to find sex because ...

NELL. But your marriage didn't really break up because of sex did it?

KATHY. Well no not really. In a way it did, yes, because I didn't like sex at all. It was all right first of all, I was sort of courting and when I think I had Michael really I found that I didn't like sex any more. Isort of felt it was disgusting. That was the whole thing really. Noman is going to stand that. The point is they're just not—just, "I've married someone just so that—just for sex?" I mean your whole life's not based on that but it is a most important part. I think really if you enjoy sex it does help a lot.

that type of thing. Make a go of it, make it last 99

NELL. And how long did it take you to get back into the way of enjoying it again?

KATHY. Well I never did any more.

NELL. What, till he left you?

KATHY. Mm. I never did.

NELL. And then meeting someone new it started all over again, it was all right?

KATHY. Only different. It was entirely different. It was a different type of thing.

NELL. Maybe you grew up somehow.

KATHY. Maybe that's what it was, maybe I was young. When you're going out and about it's all sort of a new thing isn't it?

NELL. He never suited you anyway?

KATHY. Not really, no. I mean he was quite nice looking and all that I mean young girls went for that type of thing didn't they?

He was a nice looking fellow. "You're very lucky, he's handsome looking." Really, it was nice to be seen about. You know, and I used to go everywhere, like, where I'd never been before. My mother was really strict with us when we were kids, we had to be in by nine o'clock and all that sort of thing, you know, and then you find you meet somebody when you leave school and it starts off a new life really. You leave school and then you are allowed to stay up a bit longer and all that. You find yourself taking liberties. You meet somebody and you think it's all quite a new thing really, going out and you go out to a pub and have a drink and you think it's really good. It's not really, you know. Sometimes really if you listened to your parents—sometimes, it doesn't matter what they say to you, it doesn't help at all, because you're entirely different and no one will ever change that. Not only your mother and father, no one will change what you think if you do—if I did listen to my mother I might have found myself in a different position to what I am. If I hadn't have got married.

NELL. But now when you meet someone and you think a lot of— you know, you think something of, sex is very important to you?

KATHY. It is very important yes.

NELL. And you think it's very important to a man, it keeps a man?

KATHY. Yes. Certainly. Not with some men, I mean some men—with some women—some women you hear them say it doesn't bother them and all that type of thing and the same with some men. It all depends what kind of nature you are I think. With some men, you know, they're married to someone, they're very good, I mean they might be the most horriblest person you've ever met, ugly and things like that, and he's very handsome. You often find a really handsome man—I know someone who's like that and she's a right horror, you know what I mean? But she's very good where sex is concerned, very good in bed.

NELL. Really. That's a thing that always interests me because you think someone can really be good in bed whoever they're with, don't you think it just depends if two people meet who are good with each other? Or do you think there can be one woman who's good with whatever man she goes with? And a man who can be really good with whatever woman he goes with?

KATHY. No, I don't think so. Well I don't know. With a lot of men they just don't bother, they don't care what it is. They don't. A lot of men don't care what—I mean I've heard it said a lot of men don't care what it is as long as it's sex. As long as it's there. A few think entirely different, they wouldn't do that type of thing. But I think it all depends what type of person they are, what man and what woman it is really. With a woman if it's a—some women I think they do use sex to get somebody. Just for that reason. They're very good at it and very good in bed and they sort of can keep a person like that.

NELL. You think you can?

KATHY. I think you can if you're very good at sex, you know. I'll say no more.

SHOPPING NEWS

Marks & Spencer are opening their first separate food store on 18 Oct. It will be in Orchard St, behind the Marble Arch branch, and will cover 2,000 square feet. As well as the fruit, vegetables and canned goods that Marks & Spencer already sell, they will be branching out into provisions: cheese, bacon and chickens, all fresh, not frozen, and delivered daily in chilled containers.

Laurence Baynton-Williams and his son, Roger, have opened a gallery at 70 Old Brompton Rd, SW 7, which will sell only antique maps and prints. Their stock of over 23,000 items will include prints, ranging from landscape to fashion, military to marine, and they plan to hold a series of special exhibitions. Their first and current one is of London Views and Plans, 1580 to 1866.

Treca de Paris first exhibited their beds in this country at this year's Ideal Home Exhibition. Now they have opened a showroom at 67 Welbeck St, W 1 (HUN 2522). Their beds are expensive and luxurious; one of them, the Treca Rest & Relax, has an electrically operated divan, with a press button to move the head and foot of the bed up or down, and costs from £288 15s to £327 5s, depending on size and type.

Fortnum & Mason, Piccadilly, have opened a new, extended antique department; it takes up nearly all the fourth floor, and will sell lampshades and smaller items as well as furniture.
